Reasons why

MANSION POLISH

IS THE IDEAL POLISH FOR HOSPITAL FLOORS . . . . . .

- EASE IN USE. The consistency of Mansion Polish is adjusted to make it easy to apply. Its immediate response to the action of the polisher ensures that a brilliant finish is obtained with the minimum of rubbing.
- ECONOMY. Owing to the high grade waxes used in its manufacture, only the thinnest film of "Mansion" is required to obtain a brilliant and lasting finish. A considerable saving in the amount of polish required to polish a floor is thereby effected.
- CLEANLINESS. Mansion Polish thoroughly cleans all wood surfaces.
- MAINTAINING APPEARANCE. The most attractive floors are those which are polished with a good wax polish. The regular use of "Mansion" ensures the highest degree of finish to Stained or Parquet Floors and Linoleum.

Have You Considered the Merits of SANTRON the New Germicide ?..

Gynæcology and Midwifery

Santron contains a higher percentage of pure potash castor oil soap, and differs from most germicides in that an additional soap solution is not required. It is clean and pleasant to use. When necessary may be applied in undiluted form.

For Hospitals

The essential oils do not produce any overpowering odour. The standard Rideal Walker Test proves the strength on the Typhoid Baccillus to be five times stronger than pure Phenol. Even under the most unfavourable conditions Medical research workers in a London Teaching Hospital have shown that Santron exerts its antiseptic power in a high degree. It is available to Hospitals and Public Institutions in bulk quantities at an amazingly low price.

In General Practice

For cleansing cuts and wounds, sterilization of hands and instruments, Santron is efficient and convenient. Non-poisonous, non-corrosive and harmless to linen or delicate materials.

In the Home

Santron is available to the public through all chemists, and may be indicated for all purposes of personal hygiene, including gargling, as a deodorant, and general disinfecting of sick rooms, and treatment of clothes.

Santron is manufactured solely by Rendells, a name known to the Medical Profession throughout the world for over 50 years. Like all other Rendell Products, it is made under the same scrupulous conditions and control of an independent Medical Board.

Santron is being used by many General and Women's Hospitals, Public Institutions and Factories throughout the Country.

Full Medical literature and samples supplied on application.

FOR THE TREATMENT OF HERNIA . . .

The "HECSON" REGD.

Super Elastic Truss

Strap is fixed to Pad at A. Therefore greater pressure is exerted at B, when the strap is pulled tightly.

PRICE :
Single £2 5s. 0d. Double £2 19s. 6d.

Further particulars on request from the manufacturers.

Where treatment of Hernia by surgical methods is undesirable for any reasons, the HECSON super elastic truss can be confidently recommended. The Special Feature of the HECSON Truss is that the perineal or under strap is attached to the top of the pad, instead of the lower margin as in the ordinary elastic or old spring truss. Thus it becomes part of the leverage mechanism for increasing the pressure of the pad at its base. In this way the HECSON truss can also be used to control a semi-scrotal hernia, not controlled by an ordinary elastic truss. Made of the finest quality elastic, the HECSON is comfortable and light, and yet gives maximum pressure on the external hernial ring.

INTERNAL SANITARY PROTECTION

The importance of the applicator

IN order to attain comfort and effectiveness it is necessary to insert a vaginal tampon high up in the vagina, well above the sphincter. This is easy to do with the applicator in which each Tampax is encased. Further, the applicator eliminates risk of infection and renders unnecessary any covering which may interfere with the expansion and absorptive qualities of the tampon.
It should be noted, too, that with Tampax there is no risk of disintegration, because the patented Tampax central stitching process securely anchors the long-fibred surgical cotton to the withdrawal cord.

Tampax may confidently be recommended by Physicians for use by married women during normal menstruation. Its use by unmarried girls should not be advocated when the size of the hymeneal aperture would cause difficulty in insertion and withdrawal.

We will be glad to send Doctors a full-size packet of Tampax and full details on request.

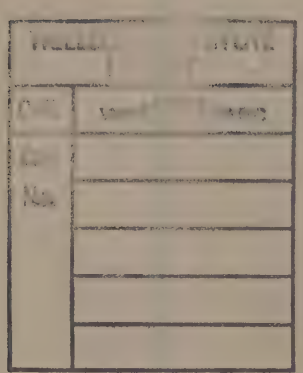
3 KODAK X-RAY FILMS

—made to meet all the demands of modern radiography

WELLCOME LIBRARY INSTITUTE

'BLUE-BRAND' ULTRA-SPEED X-RAY FILM

The ideal high-speed screen-type film—for exposures requiring an X-ray film of the highest possible speed. Despite its extreme speed it gives radiographs of very fine diagnostic quality. In common with all 'Kodak' films it has the pre-eminent merit of unvarying consistency.



X-RAY FILM CODE 6 SUPER SPEED

An excellent standard screen-type X-ray film which is now superseding the well-known 'Dupli-Tized' Super-Speed film—for a quarter of a century the world's standard X-ray film. It surpasses the latter in giving cleaner and crisper radiographs, with shorter exposures and processing times, and in allowing greater variation in exposure technique for the control of radiographic quality.

'KODIREX' X-RAY FILM

The well-established direct-exposure film for the critical examination of fine bone structures. This film has recently been improved to give about double the speed, without detriment to its diagnostic qualities.

Other 'Kodak' supplies for medical radiography include the 'Kodak' Fluorographic Unit and 'Flurodak' film for mass miniature radiography: intensifying screens: X-ray cassettes and exposure holders: negative marking outfits: processing units and processing equipment: X-ray film hangers: film drying cabinets: X-ray viewing illuminators: and X-ray processing chemicals. All these items of equipment may be viewed at the Medical Department showrooms at Kodak House, Kingsway. For further particulars write for the Kodak X-ray Catalogue.

THE LATE A. E. CEADEL, F.S.S.

By the death of Albert Edward Ceadel in April, 1945, the hospital employing authorities of the country have sustained a very great loss, and his many friends and those to whom he gave counsel for so many years will have suffered a sense of personal bereavement.

He joined the Hospital and Medical Services Department of the Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society in 1918 and was closely associated with the late Sir Napier Burnett in laying the foundation of what later became the Central Bureau of Hospital Information. From 1920 he did most valuable work in the preparation of " The Report of the Voluntary Hospitals of Great Britain (excluding London) " which was published annually; this naturally led later to his ultimate appointment as Editor of " The Hospitals Year-Book " which superseded the "Report" and became the standard work on hospital services throughout the country.

In 1930 he was appointed Secretary of the Central Bureau of Hospital Information (of which the late R. H. P. Orde had been appointed Director in 1928). Here he was wholly in his element, since the publication of " The Hospitals Year-Book " was directly connected with the activities of the Bureau. During the next ten years he was almost entirely concerned with the development of the Bureau, including the preparation of the " Year-Book." Those activities provided the opportunity for him still further to widen his unique knowledge of affairs over the whole field of hospital service. In consequence he achieved a reputation for his unfailing ability to furnish answers to the very wide range of questions put to him from all parts of the country —a state of affairs which in turn continually extended his experience. His activities in the Bureau, notably his work on standards, brought him in touch with the local authority field of hospital service as well as the voluntary; and it is no exaggeration to say that he possessed a knowledge of hospital affairs that was unique. He was for many years a Fellow of the Royal Statistical Society.

Unassuming in his general disposition and of quiet manner, he nevertheless combined exceptional powers of shrewd analysis with a very broad vision on hospital problems and policy as a whole, as was demonstrated when in 1941 he was appointed Assistant Secretary to the British Hospitals Association in addition to his other offices.

He brought all these qualities and qualifications to the annual work of publishing " The Hospitals Year-Book " of which he became Sub-Editor in 1931, succeeding to the Editorship after the death of his colleague, Mr. Orde.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR REVIEW.

BY THE EDITOR.

As in the case of the previous two years, many difficulties have had to be overcome in the production of this edition of the Year-Book, but the lateness of its publication, though regretted, is unavoidable.

The financial statistics refer to 1942, but it may be of interest to say that it is hoped to publish the figures for both the years 1943 and 1944 in the next edition, in order to bring that section of the book more nearly into line with the Directory, which is, as far as possible, always up to date at the time of publication. It will be realised that statistics cannot be published in the Year-Book until two years have elapsed since the date to which they refer. This is because they are compiled from annual reports published by individual hospitals at any time during the year following that covered by their published accounts.

Voluntary Hospitals Finance, 1942.

Hospitals have in former years been repeatedly reminded that in order to make the financial statistics of the greatest value, they should compile their figures in the correct form and send them in proper time for inclusion in the Year-Book. Out of a possible total of 1,104 voluntary hospitals containing 102,172 beds as their normal complement, 835 hospitals with an establishment of 99,448 beds (86% of the total) have contributed figures, which constitutes a marked improvement over the previous year, when only 742 hospitals containing 88,823 beds were included. But for the difficulties inherent in the publication of annual reports during the war, this total, it is felt, would have been even more satisfactory. There is, however, on page 24 a list of those hospitals who did not classify their maintenance expenditure as enjoined in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts on which Table 5 is based. It is to be hoped that these hospitals will see their way to conforming with the methods of the majority, since their defection lessens the value of one of the most important Tables.

Examination of the financial position of the voluntary hospitals of Great Britain as a whole reveals its strength, as will be seen from the following general summary of the income and expenditure of the voluntary hospitals for 1942. It will be noted that, because income exceeded expenditure, the percentages of income on expenditure from the various sources adds up to more than 100% :

1942. Total Income for Maintenance ... £21,185,082
1942. Total Expenditure for Maintenance £18,512,628

Income.	Source of Income.	Percentage of Income.	Percentage of Expenditure.
3,832,362	Subscriptions, Donations, etc.	18·09	20·7
1,966,045	Interest on Investments.	9·28	10·6
1,777,515	Legacies, etc.	8·39	9·6
7,575,922		35·76	40·9
8,811,166	Patients' contributions, including receipts from Contributory Schemes.	41·59	47·6
4,612,153	Receipts for Public Services from Emergency Medical Service and Local Authorities.	21·77	24·9
185,841	Other Income.	·88	1·0
£21,185,082		100·00	114·4

Income for Purposes of Maintenance.

As the result of statements which have been made at various times, there seems to be an impression in some quarters that a considerable proportion of the surplus income over expenditure is due to receipts for public services rendered. It is interesting, therefore, to observe that receipts per available bed in London from this source are lower than at any time during the three years 1940–1942, and in the Provinces a rise of only £1 approximately per bed has been recorded.

Voluntary gifts, however, show a striking increase. The sum of £3,832,000 represents an increase of £500,000 over 1941 in subscriptions and donations, of which £400,000 is accounted for in the Provinces and £100,000 in Scotland.

Legacies also have shown an increase of £340,000 over 1941. These were showing a downward trend from 1938 to 1941, and in the last edition of the Year-Book it was suggested that the substantial drop in free legacies during 1941 was due either to the knowledge that a National Health Service was contemplated or to increased taxation during the war. Be that as it may, the trend is now once more upward.

Patients' contributions amounting to £8,810,000 show the very marked increase of £2 million throughout the country. This large increase can chiefly be attributed to the Contributory Schemes, from which a sum of approximately £5 million was received, which may be taken to show the very strong position that these Schemes now hold in the country generally.

The preceding paragraphs show the sources of increasing income, whilst the following figures show the total income per available bed for purposes of maintenance in 1942, compared with the preceding years :—

1940	£188·28
1941	201·28
1942	213·03

The figures for 1942, therefore, may be said to represent a considerable achievement in view of the circumstances prevailing during the war.

Expenditure for Purposes of Maintenance.

Because of the differing numbers of hospitals supplying classified figures in Table 5 for the three years 1940 to 1942, it is difficult accurately to compare the total maintenance expenditure in any one year with that in the others. In the case of London, expenditure on maintenance per available bed has risen from £255·6 in 1940 to £286·2 in 1942 while in the Provinces it has risen from £152·6 to £172·4.

Turning to the analysis of expenditure, the trends generally are those which would be expected. A steady rise in fuel costs and a generally heavy increase in wages throughout the country are those most noticeable. In London £7·5 per available bed and £6·3 in the Provinces represent increased expenditure on salaries and wages over 1941, though this is not so heavy an increase as in the previous year. The overall increase for Great Britain and Northern Ireland of £6·3 per available bed demonstrates the very considerable expense incurred on this account, an expense which is still steadily increasing and which will almost certainly be even more marked in the figures for 1943.

Comparison of total income and expenditure over the past three years shows that there has been a steady rise in credit balance.

	1940 (826 hpls.).	1941 (742 hpls.).	1942 (835 hpls.).
Received ...	£18,690,650	£19,412,192	£22,922,045
Spent ...	16,927,547	17,166,271	19,378,129
Surplus Income ...	£1,763,103	£2,245,921	£3,543,916

A general summary (on page 12, Section 3) of individual net surpluses and deficits on maintenance account shows the following percentages of hospitals with a surplus of income over expenditure :—

London	82%
Provinces	85%
Scotland	87%

Table 3 on page 17, moreover, shows that the percentage of hospitals in Great Britain, excluding London, with a surplus of income over expenditure has increased, regardless of the size or type of hospital. With few exceptions the position of individual hospitals is reflected in the trend shown by the general summary. In London, a very slight increase in the number of deficits is recorded, though the total surplus in the area of income over expenditure is larger than in 1941.

Patients and Beds.

The following summary relating to new in-patients per available bed shows a tendency to reduce the average time of stay of each patient. It should, of course, be remembered that these figures are based on all hospitals, including those taking long-stay cases.

	In-patients.
London.
1940	11·1 per bed per annum.
1941	10·8 ,, ,,
1942	12·2 ,, ,,
Provinces.
1940	13·5 per bed per annum.
1941	13·3 ,, ,,
1942	14·1 ,, ,,

Table B of the General Summary on page 11 gives figures of patients in 1942, which are shown below, together with those for the preceding two years :—

	1940 (826 hpls.).	1941 (742 hpls.).	1942 (835 hpls.).
No. of beds ...	90,672	88,823	99,448
New in-patients	1,188,178	1,159,481	1,371,153
New out-patients	5,430,690	5,313,403	6,267,323

The figure for the percentage of available beds occupied daily in 1942 is 64·2%, an improvement of 3% over 1941. Improvement is chiefly noticeable in the London area.

At first sight, this percentage may seem very low, but it is accounted for by the fact that a large number of beds had always to be held in reserve for casualties from air raids and other forms of enemy action, casualties which fortunately did not reach the numbers which had been expected. A rapid decrease in the number of these reserved beds has taken place since the end of the war, thus releasing many more beds for the civilian population.

RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT

"THE Hospitals Year-Book" is primarily a work of reference comprising a directory and other particulars of the units composing the nation's hospital service, together with an annual statistical review of the work and finances of the voluntary hospitals. The book, however, serves another useful purpose in that it provides against a background of factual record a periodic opportunity for dispassionate but critical review of current events.

This edition is published at a turning-point in the history of our health and hospital services, and the review is inevitably as much concerned with prospect as with a retrospect which must probe beyond the events of any one of the war years. For the future is born of the past, and in order to comprehend the merit of a new régime it is first necessary to appreciate the shortcomings of the old, and the trends to improvement which these shortcomings have originated or inspired.

From early times until the latter part of the last century institutional provision for the sick in this country was wholly dependent on benefaction and voluntary effort. The first hospitals were St. Bartholomew's and St. Thomas's; the only provision for apprenticeship to the medical profession was made—and substantially still is—in a certain number of the "voluntary" hospitals; and it remained for Florence Nightingale, again using a voluntary hospital as her instrument, to liquidate "Sarah Gamp" and create the conception of nursing and nurse training which laid the foundations of perhaps the most honoured profession open to women. In the last century, however, there has been a gradual stirring of the public conscience; and so the local authorities, first handicapped by the Poor Law Acts, but more recently stimulated by the Local Government Act, October (1929) and Public Health Act, 1936, have in modern times become ever more closely concerned, first with Public Health Services (such as Maternity, T.B. and other clinics) and ultimately with the provision of hospital services as such; services not only for the chronic sick and mental patients, but also for acute medical and surgical cases.

REGIONALISATION OF VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS

It was in 1937 that the voluntary hospitals, through the British Hospitals Association, set up a Commission under the Chairmanship of Lord Sankey to consider whether there should be a closer interworking between individual hospitals based on co-operation within defined areas or regions. The Commission's terms of reference were of course primarily confined to the voluntary hospitals alone, but the Sankey Commission in due course not only recommended the principle of regionalisation of voluntary hospital services, but also the desirability of extending this principle to include co-operation with the local authorities.

REGIONAL CO-OPERATION BETWEEN VOLUNTARY AND MUNICIPAL HOSPITALS

In 1940 Lord Nuffield established the Nuffield Provincial Hospitals Trust, one of the primary objects of which was to promote regionalisation of hospital services on this broad basis. By 1941, considerable strides had been made towards the formation of Regional Hospital Councils, notably in Berks, Bucks and Oxon, Devon and Cornwall, and Northumberland and Durham. There are now in England and Wales ten Joint Councils of this type in existence. All have, in varying degrees, demonstrated their usefulness and the inherent soundness of the basis of co-operation between municipal and voluntary effort as the guiding principle upon which they were established.

THE EMERGENCY HOSPITAL SERVICE

Then came the war and the Emergency Hospital Service. The consultations between the Ministry of Health and the British Hospitals Association and no doubt with others which had been going on continuously before the war, provided the opportunity to test out more thoroughly the mechanics of a system of regionalised co-operation on a national basis—in the form of the Emergency Hospital Service. Many valuable lessons were learnt; not the least of these were that the principles of such co-operation could be put into practice, and that central direction was best confined to broad planning and the encouragement of co-operation between the hospital units themselves rather than by enforcement of any form of rigid control.

THE SURVEYS OF HOSPITAL SERVICES

And so to the surveys of hospital services.* No doubt it was largely due to the direct contact into which the Ministry was thus brought with hospitals that the Minister of Health and the Secretary of State for Scotland decided to have surveys made of the hospital provision, existing

* The Surveys of the Hospital Services, published by H.M. Stationery Office in 1945–46, but now out of print, covered the whole of England and Wales in ten areas, and Scotland in five areas. The Nuffield Provincial Hospitals Trust printed in 1944 a Survey of the Hospital Services in Northern Ireland.

and required, in England and Wales and in Scotland. The Nuffield Provincial Hospitals Trust was associated with some of these, and also undertook a survey of hospital services in Northern Ireland. The surveyors were working in their personal capacities; their reports are therefore not binding upon anyone. Nevertheless these reports, apart from their intrinsic merit, are valuable as the first serious attempt to catalogue comprehensively the existing services, to list their deficiencies, and to obtain suggestions for their improvement from a number of men with widely differing experience and outlook.

The diversity in the treatment of the subject in the various survey reports is undoubtedly a tribute to the free hand which the surveyors enjoyed. But a directive ensuring a more uniform basis of presentation would not only have eliminated the repetition of principles in each report, but, by facilitating codification and comparison, would have greatly eased the task of those who wished or needed to read them.

SURVEYORS' CONCLUSIONS

Careful study of the Survey Reports reveals certain trends of opinion common to all.

(a) Regions

They generally expressed concurrence with the long-held view that the hospital services should be organised on a regional basis; and that a University Teaching Hospital Centre should provide the focal point of each hospital region, the teaching hospitals' influence being exercised through a system of linkage with the larger non-teaching hospitals, which in their turn would be linked with the smaller and purely local hospitals.

(b) Bed Requirements

As to the requirement of beds, there was no concensus of opinion, but several surveys suggested a figure as high as one per cent. of the population. It is reasonable to infer from the Reports that the sum total of extra beds required for acute cases alone amounts to no less than 50,000. Many of the Reports stressed that hospitals should be so designed and sited as to make ample allowance for expansion and further development; while there must be adequate accommodation for patients and staff, for nurse training and ancillary facilities to widen the experience of resident medical officers, regard must also be had to "administrative convenience." The last-named factor inevitably limits the number of beds in any hospital if personal touch is to be maintained in its management and administration, and the view expressed in a number of the surveys was that in the case of general hospitals this limit is reached at between 500 and 800 beds.

(c) Out-patients

Stress is laid on the need for improvement of the arrangements for out-patients and the introduction of a system of appointments. The outline of such a system, based on experience gained from experiment, is contained in pages 5–8 of this book.

(d) Cottage Hospitals

While no doubt their managers would be among the first to admit that there is room for considerable improvement in their sphere as in any other, the so-called cottage hospitals have been the subject of almost vicious attack from time to time. These hospitals, generally staffed by local G.P.'s, but often with arrangements for call on the services of eminent physicians and surgeons, have endeared themselves to the local residents for whose benefit they were originated; they may be small but their atmosphere is intimate, and in rural areas they provide the patient with a welcome alternative to a long journey and admission to a larger hospital full of strangers at a distance from home. It is the more interesting therefore that the surveyors generally recognise that hospitals of this type must have a continuing existence, though in the new order their function would be more limited; arrangements for consultative staff should be the rule, this provision being made through larger general hospitals with which the smaller hospitals should be administratively connected.

(e) Chronic Sick

There are many other items of interest in these Survey Reports which are outside the scope of this review, but brief reference must be made to the vastly important and pressing problems connected with the adequate care and treatment of patients suffering from chronic illness, disability, or infirmity.

The surveyors subscribe to the view which draws distinctions between several categories of the incurable patient.

(1) Those who require continuous supervision and treatment, which, they recommend, should be obtained in general or other appropriate hospitals:

(2) Those who can reside at home with intermittent treatment:

(3) The aged and infirm who cannot be adequately nursed or cared for at home and therefore require provision of special accommodation and nursing appropriate to their needs, including facilities for occupation and recreation.

Their recommendations involve a very necessary and overdue re-casting of outlook towards the chronic sick; demand abandonment of the practice of regarding them as needing only accommodation in an institution without any regard to the type or suitability of the accommodation thus provided; and give added importance and urgency to the provision of extensive additions to the existing faculties at or near general hospitals, and also of special accommodation suitable for those whose condition requires that they should spend their lives under institutional care. Arrangements of this kind will undoubtedly be made in due time, with a number of beneficial results. They will go far to solving the existing difficulties of obtaining adequate nursing staff in institutions at present limited to the reception and treatment of chronic cases only. The patient will not be classed as a chronic until his case has been fully diagnosed—and by the closer congregation of acute and chronic cases the doctor and nurse, medical student and nurse student will broaden their outlook and experience.

(f) Conclusions

In fine, apart from detailed comment on the shortcomings of the service at present provided in a particular area and their suggestions for meeting the present physical deficiencies in beds and staff, the criticism universally levelled by the surveyors against existing practice is summed up in the one word "isolation." The parts require relating to the whole: the too-rigid lines of demarcation between acute and chronic illness have to be dispersed to enable a closer re-alignment both of outlook and effort: a properly ordered system of interworking and mutual contact between various sizes and types of hospital is necessary to provide the patient with an efficient, comprehensive, and conveniently accessible service.

THE WHITE PAPER, FEBRUARY 1943

From the evidence above recorded it can be seen that informed opinion during the last 10 years has steadily progressed in favour of hospital services within given areas being properly arranged and co-ordinated, the foundation being regional planning of services on a national basis.

It inevitably followed that this was the basis of the protracted discussions initiated by Mr. Ernest Brown in 1942, which Mr. Willink continued into 1945, with the parties principally concerned and whose co-operation was therefore sought.

THE NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE BILL

Without doubt the effectiveness of these Ministerial discussions was impeded and diminished by the fact that they took place in the main before the Surveyors' Reports on existing Hospital Services and the Report of the Goodenough Committee on Medical Education were available. Be that as it may, the National Health Service Bill for England and Wales, introduced by the present Minister of Health, Mr. Aneurin Bevan, in March 1946, not only reflects a change of Government but marks the end of an epoch.

The Bill, by going one stage farther, has the effect of reversing the previous plan. Thus, whereas the emphasis was formerly on the regional organisation with a national basis in the background, the keynote of Mr. Bevan's plan is the national basis with regional organisation as a subsidiary—albeit an important subsidiary.

As is now well known, the hospital services throughout are to be nationalised. The hospitals, whether voluntary or local authority, are to become the property of the State and the Minister of Health is to undertake the duty of providing hospital, medical, dental, nursing, and specialist services "to such extent as he considers necessary to meet all reasonable requirements." The State is to pay the bill, estimated to cost initially some 150 million pounds, though this may prove to be an under-estimate. The Bill is generally concerned with broadly delineating the scope of the services and the administrative means by which the Minister will devolve his responsibilities upon Regional Boards and other bodies. He has stated that it is not his policy that it should be managed from Whitehall.

Apart from any misgivings aroused by the general provisions of the Bill in medical and hospital circles, there has been widespread apprehension lest a measure which seemingly would deprive the hospitals of voluntary effort would also eliminate the stimulus hithero derived from local interest in hospital work; and that instead there would be created a gargantuan machine of administration involving the rigid application of bureaucratic methods to the most human of all services—the service to the sick. Such a danger of over organisation, as was admitted in the Government White Paper of 1944, must ever be present or potential in a national scheme of this kind. It can, however, fairly be said that the danger has in some measure been realised and in this respect the Bill has been substantially improved during its passage through the House of Commons.

In the original draft Bill the new management committees of the non-teaching hospitals were to have no effective function. In the amended Bill the danger of remote control of the individual hospital either by the Regional Board or even ultimately by Whitehall itself has been greatly reduced by defining and extending some of the functions and responsibilities of the Hospital Management Committees. Thus provision has now been made enabling all hospitals to undertake research, and to attract and to receive gifts and legacies for special purposes over and above the payments they will receive from the Treasury for the services required by the State; the new Management Committees of the hospitals, instead of being "puppets," are to have effective control of the unit for which they will be responsible to the Regional Hospital Board for their area. This has been accomplished without detriment to the provisions of the Bill whereby the Minister will have two principal agents, the Board of Governors of the teaching hospitals, who will manage the affairs of those hospitals, and the Regional Hospital Boards, who will be generally responsible to him for administering the hospital and specialist services as a whole in their areas.

The Government has emphasised the importance of maintaining the people's interest in hospital work so that there may be no shortage of candidates to join the local Management Committees or to undertake work of a voluntary kind in the many fields which, as the Government wisely recognises, will ever remain open in a properly designed service for the sick. It is hardly possible to attach too much importance to the continuance of support of the hospitals for special purposes and the retention thereby of the interest of the general public in their work. When the time comes for hospitals to be grouped under the new Management Committees, the ever-present temptation to sacrifice other considerations to administrative simplicity will have to be resisted, and care must be taken that no group is so large that by elimination of the personal factor in its management the danger of remote impersonal control is re-introduced.

There are many other important aspects of the Health Bill, such as its effect upon consultants, general practitioners, and recruitment to the medical and nursing professions, which are outside the scope of this article. Passing reference must, however, be made to the ambiguity which at present exists in regard to the proper co-ordination of the maternity services in the interests of mother and child. The Bill delegates to Local Authorities the responsibility of providing and running the pre-natal and post-natal and child welfare clinics, whilst the hospital provision for maternity cases comes within the field of the Regional Hospital Board. Continuity of treatment and observation is essential and the administrative arrangements must be such as will meet this requirement.

IMPLEMENTATION OF THE ACT

Although the Bill may be further amended in its passage through the House of Lords before it reaches the Statute Book, it is reasonable to assume that the National Health Service Act will, in essential respects, differ but little from the Bill as it left the House of Commons.

When the Act is passed, every citizen will, from the appointed day, have to pay his contribution to the cost of the Health Service and equally will be entitled by right to advantage himself of it. This is now well known, but it may not be so widely realised that there are two very important factors which will determine the pace at which the Minister is able to fulfil the duty, laid upon him by the Act, of actually providing the service in sufficient measure to meet requirements.

The first factor obviously is that of accommodation. A very considerable number of additional beds are required if supply is to be adequate. In addition, a considerable proportion of the existing accommodation is either damaged by enemy action or outmoded and requires substantial renovation or demolition and rebuilding. Since for a number of years housing must necessarily be the main preoccupation of the Government of the day, the problem of providing requisite hospital accommodation, though deferred for the present, will require to be systematically dealt with throughout the whole of the next decade.

The second factor is in some ways even more difficult of solution. It is the provision, in adequate number, of the additional staff required to man the beds that are at present available as well as the additional beds known to be necessary.

The war has had inevitable repercussions on recruitment of personnel for hospital staffing. There is a shortage of doctors in general practice, and newly qualified doctors during the war period have been prevented from continuing their studies in order to become specialists. The period of general medical training is five years and several years of additional study and experience are necessary to produce the younger generation of specialists. The shortage of dentists is such that the public has already been warned that it will be necessary in the new National Health Service to give a special priority to mothers and young persons for some time.

Despite the fact that recruitment to the nursing profession has continuously and steadily increased throughout the war years, the present supply of nurses is inadequate to meet existing demands. The problem created by the shortage of nurses, as it affects hospitals, can in some measure be relieved by the duties of the nurse being so arranged that none of her time is spent on any other but her appropriate professional duties. An important step in this direction will be a greater use of male and female ward orderlies, whose essential purpose is to bridge the gap between purely nursing duties and domestic ward work. The statutory recognition now afforded to the Enrolled Assistant Nurse and the fact that men in steadily increasing numbers are now being attracted to the various forms of nursing will also have beneficial effects; but it has to be remembered that to train a State Registered Nurse takes at least three years (the Assistant Nurse two years); that the extension of the field of recruitment to nursing from the secondary schools to the elementary schools will not offset the fact that there is a national shortage of woman power; and that those qualified to know are unanimous in their view that a crux of the nursing problem is to be found in the present shortage of domestic staffs. Adequate domestic assistance in the hospitals would be the greatest single contribution to improve the lot of the nurses and to solve the problem of providing a sufficient nursing service.

Among the many innovations in the hospital world of recent years one of the most interesting is the introduction of national wage negotiating committees, similar to those commonly found in the great industries. First came the Rushcliffe Committees appointed to advise the Minister of Health on salaries for nurses and midwives in England and Wales; and similarly the Taylor Committee* to advise the Secretary of State for Scotland. The recommendations of these Committees for salaries of nurses employed in voluntary and municipal hospitals, and the public health services, and for midwives, were put forward on a national basis and, as was intended, are now regarded as standard national scales.

Next the hospital employing authorities, voluntary and municipal, and the professional staff organisations concerned, voluntarily established a Joint Committee which has recently issued recommendations in respect of hospital Almoners, Physiotherapists, Pharmacists, Radiographers, and certain other categories of technically qualified staff. The salaries and conditions of service for hospital administrative staff have also been under review.

Last, and most recent, is the voluntary establishment by the hospital employing authorities and the representative trade unions, of a National Joint Council to determine wages and conditions of service for domestic staffs in hospitals and allied institutions.

There are no doubt advantages to be derived from the machinery thus provided, but there may be a tendency in some quarters to over-rate the importance of these bodies as recruiting agencies. The difficulties of hospital staffing are not limited to improvements in wages or a more convenient arrangement of working hours—important though these considerations are. Other factors have also to be taken into account, including the suitability of the individual for the work, e.g. particularly as doctor or nurse. It is prudent to assume that the present shortage of man and woman power will persist for some time; and so the problem will also have to be mitigated by other methods. In the case of nursing some indication of these methods has been given above. In the case of the domestic worker, the primary requirements appear to be: the general adoption of suitable labour-saving devices—which at the moment cannot even be purchased, a situation which requires prompt correction; experienced personnel managers should be appointed wherever the size of the hospital renders this economically possible; still more attention requires to be paid to the provision of those ordinary amenities which have been all too often denied to the worker in domestic craft, whose status needs to be raised and recognised.

Solutions to these and many other problems must be sought and found if the National Health Service Act is to be implemented. The first and last consideration, however, is that the service should be to the benefit of the patient. To achieve this, the service must not merely be well organised and administered, but must attract and command the loyalty and devotion of all those professions and individuals without whose co-operation it cannot "deliver the goods": and as the first public service dealing with so intimate and personal a concern of the citizen as his health and sickness, it must, if the patient's interest is to be wholly served, also attract and retain the interest of the general public not only in its daily work but in its ambitions and its striving for continual improvement.

APPOINTMENT SYSTEM FOR OUT-PATIENTS.

1. The Terms of the Enquiry, addressed to all voluntary hospitals of Great Britain, were as follows :—

(a) If an Appointment System for Out-patients is used in the hospital, does it as a whole fulfil all requirements or not ?

(b) In what does it consist, and is any alteration contemplated ?

2. Replies. Information upon which the following conclusions are based has been derived from 38 hospitals of all kinds.

3. Conclusions from the Enquiry. There was little divergence of opinion as regards the principle or practice of such a system, either between London and the Provinces or between the varying types and sizes of hospital, with the result that it has been possible to correlate all opinions into a series of General Conclusions.

(a) " Appointment " System is a misnomer, since all systems are really based on the allotment of periods of time to a set number of patients, but such a system was agreed to be an advantage to the patient, the medical staff, and the administration. In only one hospital had patients declined to keep appointments and had caused the system to be abandoned. It must be emphasized that the closer the relationship between patient, general practitioner and hospital the more smoothly does such a system function.

(b) The essentials of success are :—

1. Careful preparation and advertisement (in the local Press, etc.) coupled with the securing of the co-operation of the general practitioners in the district of the hospital. A letter to the individual doctors should be sent, stressing the advantages of the scheme (see Appendix II).
2. The punctuality of the medical staff. It should be borne in mind that a proper number of staff is necessary to obtain punctuality and that only experience can decide the number.
3. One or two special clerks.
4. Careful estimation, based on experience, of the numbers of patients for each individual clinic to be seen in each period, so ensuring both the continuity of the clinic and the avoidance of undue waiting time.

(c) The advantages are :—

1. The patient's convenience is greatly enhanced and that of his employer also.
2. There is an even spread of work over the day.
3. Clinical notes and X-ray photographs can be collected together beforehand.
4. In fracture clinics plaster can be changed and new X-rays taken before the clinic opens, so saving time.
5. The medical staff can control the number of patients to be seen each day (emergencies excepted).
6. On days when country buses run to the town, the town patients need not be booked.

Note.—In the case of teaching hospitals, new cases can be selected for teaching purposes by reason of the fact that the notes of the general practitioners can often be examined prior to the patients' arrival at the time which has been arranged. It is true that it is not always possible to arrange for the selection of cases for teaching at the beginning of a session.

APPOINTMENT SYSTEM FOR OUT-PATIENTS

4. Suggested Method of Operating an Appointment System.

The following is based on views of all the hospitals supplying information.

N.B.—The forms mentioned correspond with the specimens shown in Appendix I.

NEW PATIENTS

There is no general rule that new patients are seen before old patients. New patients generally are expected to arrive a quarter to a half hour before seeing the doctor or surgeon, in order that registration, preparation of Case Record papers, interviews with Almoner, etc., may be completed before the patient is seen by the doctor or surgeon.

Stages.	Form.	Details.
1. Asking for an appointment.	A	Patient or doctor requests an appointment by telephone, letter, or by sending the Form, a stock of which is kept by the General Practitioner. A "doctor's letter" is sent in advance to the consultant or is sent with the patient.
2. Appointment is made.	B	The Hospital Appointments Clerk sends details of the appointment to the patient. When the "doctor's letter" arrives the front page of the Notes and Index card is completed.
3. Arrival at hospital (see "Old Patients," para. 1).	B	Patients present Form B as "Clinic Card," and may be handed Case papers.
4. Notification of appointments made to medical staff.	C	1 Loose-leaf Register (or Bound Book with detachable leaves) per clinic is used by the Appointments Clerk to enter the appointments in "blocks," so many patients per quarter hour or other suitable period. The books are either distributed to clinics before their time of opening or they may be printed so that copies can be sent to the medical staff, Sister-in-Charge of out-patients, and Almoner, while the book is retained by the Appointments Clerk. It is usually more convenient to use separate books for each day the clinic is held.
5. The patient is seen by medical staff.	B	The patient carries his "Clinic Card" with him. This may obviate sitting in the waiting hall in sequence.
6. The doctor or surgeon wishes to see patient again.	D	The patient takes the form given to him by the doctor or surgeon to the Appointments Clerk. Generally, appointments may be made up to 1 year in advance.
7. Another appointment is made.	B	The patient is either given a fresh card, or the date of the next appointment is stamped on the original card.

OLD PATIENTS

1. The time when the old patient attends need not be so far in advance of that at which he is to be seen by the medical staff as in the case of the new patient, since Case Papers are already prepared and no interview with the Almoner may take place.

2. In-patients. Appointment for out-patient treatment may be made by the Ward Sister previously to the patient's discharge. If he is a former out-patient his original Clinic card may conveniently be used.

Notes.—1. Patients who attend at the hospital without an Appointment may be fitted in at the end of a Session unless in need of emergency treatment.

2. Fracture, Ophthalmic and Diabetic Clinics present the greatest difficulties, which can be overcome only with adequate medical staff.

APPOINTMENT SYSTEM FOR OUT-PATIENTS

APPENDIX II. LETTER TO GENERAL PRACTITIONERS

..... HOSPITAL

DEAR SIR,

The Committee of .....Hpl., after consultation with the medical staff, has decided to adopt a system of group appointments for Out-patients attending the Consultative Clinics which will operate from .....

A supply of forms "Out-patient Consultation Department" is enclosed herewith, together with a supply of envelopes, and it is requested that you will, when referring patients to the Hospital, either post the form direct to the Hospital, or hand it to the patient as heretofore and instruct him to post it to the Hospital. On receipt of this communication an appointment card will be sent direct from the Hospital to the patient, stating the day and time on which to attend.

Where there is insufficient time for the letter to be sent to the Hospital by post it may be delivered personally by the patient, or if necessary, an appointment may be made by telephoning to the Out-patient Department Appointments Clerk.

Appointments for patients making other than their first attendance will be made by the patients before leaving the Hospital.

The Committee are confident that they will receive your co-operation in this endeavour to improve the organization of the Hospital and to avoid unnecessary waiting by patients.

Further supplies of forms and envelopes will be supplied immediately upon request.

Yours faithfully,

ADDENDUM TO MEMORANDUM No. 47.

SEVEN-YEAR COVENANTS.

INCOME TAX RECOVERABLE WITH STANDARD RATE OF 9*s.* IN £

Now that the standard rate of income tax has been reduced to 9*s.* in the £, the amount of income tax recoverable by a hospital from the Inland Revenue in respect of a seven-year covenant will be nine-elevenths of the amount of the subscription that is paid in cash by the subscriber.

The following table shows the amounts recoverable in a number of cases, and from these the amount recoverable in respect of a subscription of any other amount can easily be arrived at.

Subscription paid in cash.	Income tax recoverable.	Subscription paid in cash.	Income tax recoverable.
£	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
1	16 4	1 1 0	17 2
2	1 12 8	2 2 0	1 14 4
3	2 9 1	3 3 0	2 11 6
5	4 1 9	5 5 0	4 5 10
10	8 3 7	10 10 0	8 11 9
50	40 18 2	52 10 0	42 19 1
100	81 16 4	105 0 0	85 18 2

The amount recoverable in respect of any subscription and with any standard rate of income tax can always be found by the formula $£\frac{ax}{20 - x}$, where a represents the subscription paid in cash (in pounds), and x the standard rate of income tax (in shillings). For example, if the subscription paid in cash is 50 gns. and the standard rate of income tax is 8*s.* 3*d.* in the £, then the amount of income tax recoverable by the hospital will be $£\frac{52\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{4}}{20 - 8\frac{1}{4}} = £36\ 17s.\ 2d.$

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Object of Survey.

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to :—

(a) The facilities available for treatment and the extent to which they are utilised,

(b) The annual cost involved and the several sources from which the funds are derived.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.
Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.
Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

General Hospitals associated with Medical Schools.
" " without Medical Schools containing 200 or more available beds.
" " " " " " 150 to 199 " "
" " " " " " 125 to 149 " "
" " " " " " 100 to 124 " "
" " " " " " 30 to 99 " "
" " " " " " Less than 30 " "

Children's Hospitals ; Ear, Nose and Throat Hospitals ; Eye Hospitals ; Women's Hospitals ; Maternity Hospitals, etc. ; etc.

Omission from the tables of certain Hospitals.

As announced in the 1939 edition of the Year-Book (page xlv), the figures of hospitals which, after full notice, have failed to comply with certain minimum requirements in uniform accounting, do not appear in these Tables. These requirements are :—

(a) The rendering of an Annual Report by a prescribed date.

(b) The adoption of the Calendar Year for the Annual Accounts.

(c) The presentation of the accounts on the lines laid down in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, or (temporarily) in a form admitting of adjustment to comply with it. Explanations and notes of the effect of this requirement on certain hospitals will be found on pp. 13 and 14.

Adjustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., the same as the Metropolitan and City of London Police Districts. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals.

The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Thanks.

The Editor desires to express thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, to the Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals and to the Public Authorities who have kindly supplied information.

Note.—The following hospitals, whose accounts are otherwise satisfactory, did not classify their maintenance expenditure as enjoined in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts on which the preceding Table (5) is based. As it has not been found possible to correct their classification no alternative has been left but to omit their expenditure from this one table. This greatly lessens the value of one of the most important tables of the series and it is desired that each hospital concerned may examine its classification of expenditure with a view to adopting for the future that followed by the 785 conforming hospitals.

HOME AMBULANCE SERVICE

Telephone : Sloane 9828 & 7136.

Headquarters : The Joint Committee of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society, 12, Grosvenor Crescent, London, S.W. 1.

THE Home Ambulance Service of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society was set up in 1919 with the intention of providing better means of transport for the sick and injured throughout the country.

The end of the War afforded an opportunity for meeting a want that had become seriously urgent.

At the time the Armistice was signed, a large number of the ambulances of the Order and Society was still effective. Many had been shattered by enemy gun-fire. There was, however, a considerable number that could be made available for a further period of service.

Happily it was at this moment that the two organisations decided that the need for united efforts had not ceased with the War. It was arranged that for certain purposes they should continue to work together in promoting the health of the community, and one of the first steps they undertook in that direction was the organisation of a National Ambulance Service for England, Ireland and Wales.

The Committee has every reason to believe that the Home Ambulance Service has become an important link in the chain of organisations for the promotion of the health of the community, and that the co-operation of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society in its establishment has been justified by the result.

HOSPITAL SERVICE AND PRIVATE HIRE.

Arrangements may be made by telephone or letter for the conveyance of patients from London to any part of the country.

A male attendant always accompanies the driver of the ambulance.

A charge of 10*s*. is made for the conveyance of a patient from any address within the administrative County of London to any Hospital in the same area.

By arrangement with Hospital Almoners a service is maintained for the transfer of patients from Hospitals to Convalescent Homes.

A female attendant accompanies all convalescent cases and if sufficient notice is given a similar arrangement may be made for the Private Hire Service.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL AMBULANCE SERVICE.

HEADQUARTERS: THE COUNTY HALL, S.E. 1. Telephone No.: Waterloo 3311.

I. Ambulances Supplied without Payment.

THE Council provides, within the Administrative County of London, ambulances, free of cost, for the conveyance to :—

A. Hospitals and/or private residences of :—

Persons meeting with accidents or suffering from sudden illnesses in the streets, public places, places of employment, etc.

B. Hospitals :—

(i) Persons meeting with accidents in their homes;

(ii) Persons suffering from illnesses in their homes if a medical practitioner certifies that the case is one of life or death, and that arrangements have been made for the reception of the patient in a hospital;

(iii) Parturient women, if the case is one of urgency, whether from the home, place of business, or elsewhere, on the application of a qualified medical practitioner or certified midwife, provided that either a doctor or midwife accompanies the case; and

(iv) Non-urgent cases of parturition.

In such cases admission to a maternity bed must have previously been arranged and a card (issued by the Council to hospitals and municipal maternity homes) for such admission obtained. This card must be handed to the ambulance attendant at the time of removal.

In these cases a nurse or a female friend must accompany the patient. The patient may also be accompanied by her husband.

(Note.—The Corporation of the City of London maintains its own ambulance service for dealing with cases of accident and illness occurring in the streets within the City area.)

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes A and B (i).

No telephone number is required; dial "999" and ask the operator for "AMBULANCE."

Cases coming under classes B (ii), (iii) and (iv).

Ask the telephone operator (or dial) for one of the headquarters telephone numbers, namely: WATerloo 6000, NEW Cross 2645, CENtral 6301, or REGent 4000.

When communication has been effected, particulars should be clearly given in this order: Place of accident or illness, name of the caller.

C. The Council's hospitals for infectious cases.

D. The Council's hospitals and institutions for non-infectious cases.

In cases coming under class D no charge is made at the time of removal, but there is a liability to assessment of a charge based on the patient's ability to pay.

II. Ambulances Supplied on Payment.

E. Ambulances and ambulance omnibuses are also provided by the Council, when not required for the purposes stated above, on payment of charges, as laid down from time to time by the Council, for the conveyance of infectious and non-infectious cases between private houses, hospitals (other than to the Council's hospitals, etc., under the provisions of Section I) nursing homes and for examinations, consultations and treatment by specialists or at special establishments.

The conveyance of private persons between addresses both of which are outside the administrative county of London cannot be undertaken, unless in circumstances of exceptional urgency.

Arrangements for the reception of an infectious case must be made by or on behalf of the patient before application for an ambulance is sent to the Council.

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes C, D and E :—

Application should be made by telephone to Headquarters Telephone No. WATerloo 3311, when full information and the charge for any proposed removal may be obtained at any hour of the day or night, including Sundays and public holidays.

DISTRICT NURSING.

Patients who require skilled nursing in their own homes and who are unable to provide themselves with private care can be attended by district nurses. The country is almost completely covered by District Nursing Associations, 2,229 of which in Great Britain and Ireland are in affiliation with the Queen's Institute of District Nursing and therefore employ fully trained nurses.

The nurses carry out any treatment ordered by doctors whether the patient is under the care of a private, panel or District Medical Officer, or is a patient receiving treatment at a hospital. Application can be made direct to the nurse, whose address can be obtained from the Queen's Institute. The Institute can also generally supply the addresses of unaffiliated nursing associations.

Necessitous cases are nursed free of charge but the Public Assistance Authorities, recognising the value of the service, make grants to nursing associations for their nurses' visits and these, with voluntary subscriptions and donations, assist to maintain the funds required to provide free or partly free visits.

Of recent years, as the financial position of the average patient has improved, a larger proportion of income has been derived from the people themselves and the introduction of Contributory or "Provident" schemes has become very general. These originated in rural areas where a subscription of from 1*d*. to 2*d*. weekly has been collected from house to house. This is now likely to be raised to a minimum of 1½*d*. They are now organised in urban areas on subscription of 1*d*. and 1½*d*. weekly according to the size of the population and type of area, whether residential or industrial. For families with incomes above National Health Insurance limit the subscription recommended is from 10*s*. a year. Subscriptions are collected by pay roll deductions, collections in places of employment and in various groups in the towns, often connected with women's, political and other meetings. In some places the hospital and nursing association have agreed to a combined contribution for their respective benefits, but in no case has the institution of a separate scheme for nursing proved to be competitive with that of the hospital, the one service being complementary to the other. Future developments of these schemes are likely to be (a) standardization of the rate of contribution, (b) development of reciprocal arrangements between associations, (c) regional organizations. Provident schemes have undoubtedly been the means of bringing skilled nursing attention to many patients who might otherwise have lacked this service and have brought much additional support to District Nursing Associations.

(For particulars of Queen's Institute of District Nursing see pages 233, 236 and 237.)

HOSPITAL LAW NOTES

By SIR WILLIAM BAYNES, M.A., LL.M.
of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law,
Hon. Legal Adviser to The British Hospitals Association

The book deals with practically every legal or semi-legal point on which Secretaries of Hospitals have asked for information during several years past, and there is reason to hope that it may contain the answers to most of the legal problems that Secretaries ordinarily meet with in practice. The subjects are arranged alphabetically and fully indexed to facilitate reference.

Press References

"This book should be one of the working tools of any Hospital administrator, whether member of a committee or executive officer."—The Times.

"They cover almost every conceivable legal or semi-legal difficulty which a hospital secretary is likely to encounter. . . . The notes on road accident patients, on the recovery of income-tax under subscribers' seven-year covenants, and on liability for negligence as good instances of the clear and concise help which Mr. Baynes offers to his readers. The secretaries of hospitals and similar institutions who buy his little book will get good value."—The Lancet.

"It is difficult not to use extravagant superlatives in expressing one's admiration of this book. . . . No hospital secretary should be without it, and it should be worth almost its weight in Treasury Notes to proprietors of private hospitals and nursing homes, though of course it does not deal with the legal problems which are peculiar to their status."
British Medical Journal.

"This is a book which has long been needed. We desire to congratulate Mr. Baynes on the excellence of these notes which are characterized by accuracy throughout. They show a practical acquaintance with the law on the subjects dealt with, and no doubt this book will soon be in great demand. It certainly ought to have a long and useful career before it. Meantime it has our warmest recommendation."—The Medical Times.

"Beneath its unassuming title this book hides a mine of information for the hospital officer. One is struck by the simplicity of its language and by the avoidance of legal phraseology whenever possible. . . . The book should also be of value to any member of the legal profession whose practice brings him into contact with hospitals."—The Hospital.

"Of very great practical value to everyone connected with hospitals or with nursing and convalescent homes or similar institutions. It is a book which can be thoroughly recommended to anyone who is interested in the legal side of hospital work and management. Its accuracy can be vouched for."
The Nursing Times.

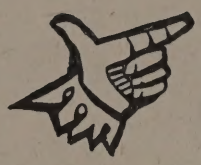
CLOSE SEASON FOR OPERATIONS



This notice was posted up regularly each year by the chief surgeon of a hospital during the middle of the nineteenth century

THIS IS THE SEASON WHEN

ERYSIPELAS

PREVAILS IN THE WARDS;

WE WILL DO

NO MORE OPERATIONS UNTIL

THE FIRST OF MARCH

Fortunately such notices are no longer needed. A better solution to infection has been found — hygienic cleanliness.
Hedley's are proud to think that in many of our hospitals, today's high standard of cleanliness is achieved with the help of their soaps. Each Hedley soap is designed for a specific purpose, so, in the laundry, kitchen or for general cleaning they can be depended upon to do their work quickly and efficiently.
